

ProjX360 Adds Customization to CI Software

Customization Provides Consistency in Records, Objective Completion April 4, 2016

Why This Matters

ProjX360 is designed specifically for custom integration, but is now among the most customizable software programs on the market.

ProjX360 recently upgraded its software by adding customizable forms and checklists. ProjX360 is designed specifically for custom integration, but is now among the most customizable software programs on the market.

All of the customizable forms are exportable as PDFs, useful for sharing with clients or for record keeping. Customized checklists for installers can be shared with the entire team to ensure consistent project scheduling. As team members finish items and check them off, each is stamped with the time and name of who completed the step.
